Janaina Tschäpe - Retrato [Portrait]
Ph. Edu Ortega

Janaina Tschäpe

Munique, Alemanha, 1973

Em sua obra, Janaina Tschäpe dá forma à relação entre o corpo e a matéria, em pinturas, desenhos, performances e fotografia. Atualmente o núcleo de sua pesquisa, as telas abstratas da artista têm um aspecto líquido que recorda contornos vegetais, animais ou minerais em paisagens silvestres e subaquáticas. A atmosfera aquática aparece também nas imagens fotográficas. Retratoando o mar, os rios e lagos, Tschäpe busca replicar processos de metamorfose e mutação presentes na natureza, assim como muitas de suas performances abordam a transformação física. Seu repertório de formas orgânicas compõe também as grandes superfícies de suas pinturas, animadas pelo movimento dos seus gestos: os riscos velozes que a artista traça com bastões a óleo sobrepõem-se à fluidez de pinceladas mais largas. O mundo natural não é representado fielmente na obra de Tschäpe, mas tem sua dinâmica vital traduzida em termos pictóricos, envolvendo o público numa ambiência inquieta.

In her work, Janaina Tschäpe gives form to the relationship between the body and matter, in paintings, drawings, performances and photography. Currently the core of her research, the artist's abstract canvases have a liquid appearance that recalls plant, animal or mineral contours in wild and underwater landscapes. The aquatic atmosphere also appears in photographic images. Portraying the sea, rivers and lakes, Tschäpe seeks to replicate processes of metamorphosis and mutation present in nature, just as many of her performances address physical transformation. Her repertoire of organic forms also composes the large surfaces of her paintings, animated by gestural movement: the quick lines that the artist traces with oil sticks overlap the fluidity of broader brushstrokes. The natural world is not faithfully represented in Tschäpe's work, but its vital dynamics are translated into pictorial terms, involving the public in a restless ambiance.

Between the Sky and the Water

Sarasota Art Museum | Sarasota, USA, 2020

Janaina Tschäpe
Between the Sky and the Water
*there is a blue and green band;
sun and aquatic plants,
a calligraphy of flames
written by the wind.
it is a reflection suspended in another.*
—Octavio Paz

Between the Sky and the Water is a mid-career retrospective of Janaina Tschäpe (b. Munich, Germany 1973). Tschäpe's wide-ranging oeuvre is visually connected by a lexicon of forms that array across a variety of media—painting, drawing, installation, sculpture, photography, video, and performance. These varied articulations of her core concepts comprise a holistic cosmology, a Gesamtkunstwerk (a total work of art), a grand evolutionary odyssey where each piece plays a supporting role, subsumed by the totality of the body. Recurring themes portend—Kafkaesque metamorphic and transformation, a feminist resistance to the perpetual pinning of the female body, a collapsing of scale and differentiating the grand cosmos from the infinitesimal cellular—an excavation of the nature of landscape—but always, most importantly, is an exploration of painting as a way of understanding the world.

Traveling from deep sea to and to space, the terrain is constantly shifting and yet the same, like a creature mimically and symbolically adapting to whatever environment they find themselves inhabiting. Atmospherically sliding between the figurative and the abstract, the work invites your eye to travel, free of regard for chronology, or need of narrative.

Paul Klee said, "Drawing is a line taken for a walk." We invite you to wander and let your eye take you for a walk through the otherworldly, existential landscapes of Janaina Tschäpe's world.
